

Helen Marketti's Music Corner

Cathy Richardson

Cathy Richardson has been the singer for Jefferson Starship since 2008. Prior to such an honor, she had taken the space left by Janis Joplin and toured with Big Brother & The Holding Company as well as played the role of Janis in the theatre production of "Love, Janis". Cathy has been on a musical road for most of her life yet she still finds time to create her own inspirations when playing with her own band in her hometown of Chicago.

"I remember my next door neighbor and I trying to learn to play the guitar. I was about ten years old at the time and she was a little older than me," recalls Cathy. "She would let me listen to her record albums. One day she told me that if I really wanted to hear girls playing guitar then I should listen to "Heart". I knew my sister had one of their albums so I listened to it and when I heard the opening for the song, "Barracuda", that was THE life changing, pivotal moment for me. Here were two women who were out front, leading this hard rock band. They were pretty and mysterious looking. I love Ann Wilson's voice. From that point on, I knew I was going to be a rock star. As I got older, I was able to see "Heart" in concert several times. Another dream come true was opening for them during the 90s in Chicago. I had my own band by that time. The second time I opened for them, I was by myself doing an acoustic set in Hawaii, so it definitely came full circle."

As time went on, Cathy seemed to be prompted by the universe as a series of events lead her to play the role of Janis Joplin. "One day in high school someone put up a flier that said, "60s Day tomorrow! Dress like a hippie!" I thought that sounded cool," remembers Cathy. "We started dressing like hippies all the time. I wore these large framed, prescription glasses and my hair was long and somewhat permed. I was playing guitar and singing by then and everyone started calling me "Janis". I have to admit, I had no idea at the time who Janis Joplin was."

"I had a friend who worked in the theatre and told me that "Love, Janis" was coming to Chicago and suggested I see it. I had already read the book "Love, Janis" so I was familiar with her story," said Cathy. "One day I received a call from the producer of the show. He said the girl who was going to play Janis dropped out. I had no theatre experience at all and said, "no thank you" but he persisted, telling me they just needed a singer and not to worry about anything else. He suggested I stop by the theatre and meet Sam Andrews (original guitar player for Big Brother & The Holding Company) who was the music director. Well, they ended up offering me the role of Janis on the spot and rehearsals were to start the following week. I toured with "Love, Janis" for about a year and a half. I left the show in 2002."

Life has a way of finding us even if we are not paying attention to what it has in store. "I got back on the road with "Love, Janis" in 2006 in San Francisco," said Cathy. "The following year I did the show in Phoenix and Tucson. At the time, Sam Andrews told me they were going on a national tour of thirty cities with Jefferson Starship, It's a Beautiful Day and Quick Silver Messenger Service. He asked me if I would be interested in being their singer for "Big Brother".

"After the tour was over, Diana Mangano who was the singer for Jefferson Starship decided that after thirteen years she didn't want to do it any more," recalls Cathy. "Paul Kantner (original member of Jefferson Airplane and Jefferson Starship) asked if I would be interested in singing with them and that's how it all got started."

Cathy works with her own bands when not on the road. "I have my own Cathy Richardson Band which is based in Chicago. I have had this band since the 90s and we do a lot of original material and cross over different genres. My other band is the Macrodots, which is a partnership between Zach Smith (formerly of Scandal) and myself. Macrodots has a more focused, rock sound. Inspiration for songwriting comes through life experiences because some events are more prolific than others."

In 2003, Cathy received a Grammy nomination for her artwork for the album, The Road to Bliss. "I was inspired to start creating cool CD packages after I saw Joni Mitchell's album, "Turbulent Indigo" which was the first CD I ever bought that reminded me of an album where the art work was tied in with the music. I used to stare at my album covers and read every single liner note." The road for Cathy Richardson is paved with good intentions and remarkable experiences. A magical trip that has no signs of slowing down.

For more information: www.themacrodots.com and www.CRBand.com

Cathy Richardson is on Facebook.

Sam Smith Cathy Richardson
macrodots

The Bellevue Hospital Welcomes Dr. Hala Bunni

Hala Bunni, M.D. has joined the Family of The Bellevue Hospital as an obstetrician/gynecologist. Dr. Bunni was born in Great Britain and raised in Canada. She now resides locally and in her spare time enjoys cooking, entertaining guests, trying new foods, traveling, snorkeling, and most of all, shopping!

Education:

University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario, Canada • American University of the Caribbean School of Medicine, St. Marten, Netherlands Antilles

Residency:

OB/GYN Residency • Franklin Square Hospital, Baltimore, MD

Hala Bunni, M.D., OB/GYN

1005 W. McPherson Hwy. • Clyde, Ohio 43410

419.547.4285

Ask For, Request & Use ~

Quality Care, Close To Home

Now Accepting New Patients